- What is that beauty which the artist struggles to express from lumps of earth? --Stephen Deadalus (James Joyce, Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, p.165).
- Aesthetics is for the artist as ornithology is for the birds. --Barnett Newman

The above quotes contain a host of implications and assumptions. Among them, that the artist aims to express beauty; that it is the artist who expresses; that the beauty expressed stands in some mimetic relation to “truth”; that aesthetic theory contributes to aesthetic judgment, evaluation, and creativity; and that it doesn’t. The starting point for this course is that aesthetic theory contributes greatly to our understanding of these questions, and much more.

The course covers selected major figures and topics in philosophical Aesthetics, both historical and contemporary. We will examine the theory and art of various theorists, poets, musicians, sculptors and painters. Major topics include the source of artistic creation, the function of art (as representation in its relation to “truth”), the historical, emotional, and intellectual character of the work; and key concepts of aesthetic judgment and criticism (such as the beautiful, the sublime, and the tasteless). We will read primary texts, examine artworks, and learn how to analyze and clarify key concepts. The particular aims of the course are to introduce you to a wide variety of aesthetic problems and to enrich your capacity for aesthetic judgment and sensibility. The main thesis of the course is that the history of aesthetic theory reveals a fundamental shift, i.e., that the object’s traditional mimetic function gradually dissolves into pure contextuality. Well, let us see! Students will be expected to read a lot, to discern, analyze, and critique the philosophical arguments at stake. A lot of good philosophical ground will be covered—too lightly perhaps, but still engaging and useful. Classes will be discussion/participation driven. Grades will be based on two short papers, a presentation, and a longer term paper.

Essential Requirement: By taking this class, you agree to understand and comply with this syllabus.

Attendance: Students are expected to attend every session. Please do not be late (I'll try not to be). I have three main rules: (1) Always bring the assigned text to class. (2) Do not use electronic devices in class. (3) Listen while others are talking and keep discussions respectful. (4) Acknowledge more than three rules.

Academic Integrity: The Gods of Academia—Pedagogia, Meticulous, and Areteos—oblige me to mention that the usual rules against academic dishonesty (namely plagiarism) are in force. Penalties are severe. But accidents do happen, so be careful. If you have any questions or concerns, feel free to ask me (or, consult the gods directly).

Citation Mechanics: See Instructions posted on Moodle

Moodle: Here you will find course material such as the syllabus, possible some course readings, handouts, citation mechanics, Grade Calculation guide, and whatnot. I usually alert you by e-mail (via the “News Forum”) of any important changes or announcements, so, check your e-mail regularly. You may also post your own thoughts on the News Forum for everyone to see.

The Writing Center:

If you have writing issues that need extra attention, please take advantage of the Writing Center. Their instructors help all students, from first-year to doctoral. Keep in mind that they will not proofread or copy-edit your work. Walk in or make an appointment: 9 am - 5 pm, Monday – Friday. West Hall 336; Ext. 3157; E-mail: writing@aub.edu.lb

See course schedule, below.

Course Schedule: This schedule is subject to change, although any changes will be announced well in advance. To be prepared for class discussions, read the assigned material prior to class time. Always bring the assigned material to class. Bring whatever is assigned for Tuesday to Thursday's class as well.
